The Chapelized Literary Pubcrawl

Pints of porter, music, joy and literature! Let's celebrate James Joyce, his father, and their Chapelized pub crawls together, when James was a youngster and his father Stanislaus worked at the Chapelized Distillery, with a literary pub crawl of our own!

Guided by Alice Coghlan, director of Wonderland's audio walk and 3CD of Dubliners, in association with Chapelized Community Festival, our literary pub crawl begins with pints, chat, craic, and a friendly introduction to, and readings and song from Finnegans Wake at the Mullingar House Inn, the pub in which Joyce set his great modernist novel in. After our pint, we'll take to the village of Chapelized on headphones, on which we'll listen to A Painful Case in situ, as it is told and performed to us by leading Irish actors. As we listen and walk, we'll follow Mr Duffy's love story from the village to its tragic climax on the Magazine Fort Hill, via a hot punch at The Bridge Inn. Once in the Phoenix Park, we'll explore the haunts of one of Joyce's greatest influences, the Chapelized native and Gothic horror writer Sheridan Le Fanu, who was born here, before visiting the house, church and churchyard in which both Joyce and Le Fanu set their classic tales, where we will hear extracts from both of their stories performed.

'Brilliantly delivered... an atmospheric journey through Edwardian Dublin with flawless dramatisations of the stories...it is spine tingling stuff..' Daragh Reddin Metro

'It's a joyous celebration not just of Joyce but of parts of Dublin that many natives, never mind tourists, rarely see... beautifully written, beautifully performed stories ...Joyce would love it.'
The Irish Times

'A wonderfully conceived idea.' Lauren O'Toole entertainment.ie 'A thrilling experience.' Louise Finn The Dubliner. 'A treat for any fan' Eithne Shorthall, The Sunday Times.
